

Dear College Baseball Advisors,

I had the pleasure to coach Mac Moore for 6 years and have watched him grow into an outstanding baseball player and fine young man. The work ethic he displayed year after year was one I often highlighted to the team in hopes they too would display the drive and determination to improve on the baseball diamond. Mac is the kind of player and person his teammates respected and his actions both on and off the diamond were that of a leader. In fact, when my 7-year old son hit his first home run last year, he was so proud to let Mac know that he hit one over the fence just like he does.

I look forward to watching Mac's continued growth on the diamond as he begins his High School career. Mac is that type of player and young man all coaches love having on their team.

Sincerely,

Jason McFarland
