To whom it may concern,

I have the pleasure of being Mac's select team coach for the Tri State Arsenal. Mac is the type of player that coaches love to have on their team. He has the versatility to play a number of positions. We know that we can put Mac anywhere on the field and he will give us 100%. I've been coaching at the high school level for almost 10 years, and in all my years, Mac has been the most mature, hard-working and has the most baseball smarts out of all my players over the years. Mac takes game days seriously, and prepares like a pro. He's always looking to improve, and will always take the extra grounders, or extra swings in the cage to get himself better. On the field, he's a leader. He takes charge, makes sure everyone knows what they're doing pre-pitch, and communicates what's going on and where players should move based on a batters previous at-bats. It's like we have another coach on the field when Mac's out there.

Off the field Mac is the kind of person you want as a member of your program. He's intelligent, charismatic, a great teammate, a leader, and a humble person. Mac was the best player on our team this past season, and sometimes the best players can let that fact get to their heads, but not Mac. He always made himself out to be equals with his teammates, and would always be the first person to congratulate a teammate on a good play. He never separated himself from anyone.

I am excited about the potential for Mac beyond High School, both on and off the baseball field. I would highly recommend him to anyone who wants a talented, versatile baseball player, and an even better young man.

Sincerely,

Kurt Delp
