

Ezra is a young man of exceptional moral character. He is kind and respectful of all people. In the classroom, I witnessed this when he successfully worked as a lab partner with students of various ages and backgrounds. He is responsible. When Ezra's says he will get something completed by a specific time, then it will be done despite balancing a busy extra-curricular schedule. He is a hard worker who is passionate about baseball, his family and his friends. In the classroom, I saw Ezra's determination and resilience in both learning and understanding the material in Honors Chemistry. Finally, Ezra is a clear communicator who is well-liked by his peers. This was demonstrated in his Toastmasters public speaking course where he chose topics that were relevant to his audience and communicated in an engaging and effective manner both in prepared and impromptu speeches. It has been a pleasure to have this young man as a student
