

At 6'1", and a wiry athletic 160 pounds, Trot Simms has upside and projects with tremendous upside on the mound. His fastball, currently 82-85, has potential to increase in velocity as his spin rate increases due to physical strength increasing. The righthander's ability to work to either side of the plate with intent will increase his pitch-ability and keep the hitters off balance when he spins his curveball which has good spin and tilt. Gaining more confidence in his feel for a change-up will really keep hitters off the fast ball as well. Showing ability to throw in all counts and situations. The real difference maker though is his work ethic and desire to be great. He wants to be great, hold himself to high standards and is a good teammate.
