

As an assistant varsity baseball coach at Altamont High School, I'm pleased to write this letter of recommendation in regards to Judd Taylor.

My first memories of Judd begin when he was about ten years old, when him and my son played on all-star teams together. He has the same work ethic and passion for baseball today, as he did back then. In fact, it's intensified each year.

Judd has tremendous leadership skills which are easily seen on, and off the field, with the positions he places himself in. While serving as an FFA officer, or various leadership positions within his church, in addition to being a student athlete.

His grades are clearly as important as he's maintained a 3.6 grade point average throughout our high school baseball season.

It's been a privilege to watch Judd's growth over the years, and to have had the opportunity to help coach him throughout his high school career. He's been a tremendous asset to our team, and our culture, since day one, as a freshman. I have no doubt he has what it takes to serve any role provided to him within a college team. He's a great teammate who's coachable, and is a great young man of character.

If you have any questions, feel free to ask as you consider Judd to be part of your school and your team.

Sincerely,

Whit Beal
