

Reid is an exemplary example of what college coaches are looking for in a successful program. Not only is he coachable, but combined with a great work ethic, he has the ability to make adjustments that allows him to stay competitive and consistent. I have had the pleasure of training Reid over the last couple years and his attentiveness to detail and determination to win has made my job very easy. Amongst many other reason, Reid would excel at the college level and help any team win a championship.
