

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to wholeheartedly recommend Angus Brumbaugh, a graduating senior whom I have had the privilege of knowing throughout all four years of his high school career. During this time, I have worked with Angus both as his chemistry teacher and as his football coach, giving me a well-rounded perspective on his character, work ethic, and leadership.

Angus consistently demonstrates respect for his peers, teachers, and coaches. Whether in the classroom or on the field, he approaches every situation with maturity and integrity. He understands the importance of accountability and treats others with kindness and professionalism, earning the trust and respect of those around him.

As a student, Angus is hardworking and dedicated. He puts forth consistent effort, asks thoughtful questions, and takes responsibility for his learning. He does not shy away from challenges and instead views them as opportunities to grow. This same mindset carries over to athletics, where he models discipline, perseverance, and commitment. His strong work ethic and positive attitude set a standard for his teammates to follow.

Perhaps most impressively, Angus leads by example. He models positive behaviors and habits both academically and athletically, making him a quiet but impactful leader. Younger students and teammates naturally look to him as someone who does things the right way, even when no one is watching.

I am confident that Angus will be a valuable asset to any college, program, or organization he joins. He possesses the character, determination, and integrity necessary for continued success beyond high school. I recommend him without hesitation.

Please feel free to contact me if you require any additional information.

Sincerely,
Brett Stonecipher
Science Department Chair
Combs High School Football
bstonecipher@jocombs.org