"I've known Alex for 8+ years and there aren't many as driven and hard working as him. He will do what it takes and put in the extra hours needed to be successful. He's a gamer.. and can handle the pressure of the big moment. Alex has my highest recommendation!

-- Jason Flach, former professional player in Atlanta Braves organization.

I am proud to recommend Alex Kiniry, a former player in our baseball program and an outstanding young man who represents everything you hope to see in a student-athlete.

Alex has always been a hard worker, both on and off the field. He brings a high level of intelligence and awareness to everything he does, which allowed him to grow not only as a player but as a teammate and leader. Early in his career, Alex faced some unfortunate injuries that could have easily set him back. Instead, he used those challenges as motivation.

Through his work ethic, determination, and commitment to improvement, Alex developed into a very important contributor on a very successful team. His perseverance speaks volumes about his character—he doesn't look for excuses, he looks for solutions.

Beyond his athletic ability, Alex is dependable, coachable, and consistently puts the team first. He is the type of individual who earns the respect of his peers and coaches through his actions every day.

I have no doubt that Alex will bring the same level of effort, resilience, and character to whatever opportunity is in front of him next. I strongly recommend him without hesitation.

"I have had the pleasure of working with Alex Kiniry as his academic advisor at USC Union since he enrolled with us as a new freshman in Fall 2024. As a student-athlete, he was able to balance the many demands on his time while excelling academically in his coursework. He has always been deliberate and conscientious in his approach and will no doubt maintain the level of success that he has seen in Union wherever he lands next.
