"I highly recommend college coaches follow Matt Wegman's high school career at Arizona College Prep (ACP) High School (Chandler, Arizona). He has all the tools and habits needed to succeed at the next level. Currently, Matt is a two-way prospect with a potential future on the mound and as a position player. He has solid mechanics on the mound and at the plate. He's a key contributor in an ultra-competitive "East Valley" high school baseball program that competes in a conference with tons of college and professional prospects across the region. He has a strong academic track record at a high school that features one of the more challenging curriculums in the state. Lastly, he has the drive, passion, discipline, and talent to meet the daily challenges of being a collegiate student athlete. He's a college coach's dream. He'll perform in the classroom, he'll work hard and perform on the field, and he'll make socially responsible decisions off the field."
