

To Whom This May Concern;

As a player and coach I've been a part of a Division I baseball program that has won conference championships and a part of programs that were unsuccessful. I understand what type of players are needed to make a program successful that go beyond talent alone. Players that are students of the game, work hard, mentally tough, physically tough, consistent, detailed, competitive, off the field are not an issue, overall a good representation of the program, the list can go on. There is a lot requested of a collegiate student athlete. Conor is a player that demonstrates all of these traits.

In my time coaching and watching Conor grow as a catcher, I've seen in him what can help a program succeed. Conor is not only a player that wants to get better everyday on the field, but he demonstrates that off the field as well. Conor is mature beyond his years and is always trying his best to be better for everyone around him.

Conor will be a player that is never a concern, is willing to learn, will do what is needed for the program, is a great teammate, will go above and beyond, and will overall be a great reflection of any program.

Conor was a pleasure to coach, know, and see develop.

Conor will be an important asset for any team to be successful.
